DIRECTORY OF TRIBAL COURTS

Twelve federally recognized tribes in Michigan operate their own tribal courts; in addition, there is one inter-tribal court system. Tribal courts exercise exclusive jurisdiction over misdemeanors involving Indians and concurrent jurisdiction with the federal courts over felonies involving Indians that occur on reservations. Tribal courts have broad powers in matters involving the welfare of Indian children, pursuant to the Indian Child Welfare Act, 25 USC 1901 et seq. Tribal courts also have jurisdiction over a variety of civil matters involving both Indians and non-Indians when the activities in question occur on their reservations. For further information, contact a specific court listed below or Michigan Indian Legal Services, (800) 968-6877.

Each applicant for admission must complete an Application for Admission to Practice, an Oath of Admission, and must be duly admitted to practice. Admission to practice before the Tribal Court is deemed admission to practice before the Appellate Court. The Application for Admission to Practice and Oath of Admission are available on the Pokagon Band of Potawatomi Indians website at www.pokagonband-nsn.gov/tribalcourt.htm.

Intergovernmental Agreements:

- State of Michigan tax agreement and amendments.
- Cross-deputization agreements of law enforcement with each of the counties of Berrien, Cass, and Van Buren.
- Unless the limited circumstances where federal law mandates “full faith and credit” recognition and enforcement are present, tribal laws, court rules, and administrative orders provide for “comity” recognition and enforcement of foreign judgments, orders, subpoenas, and warrants from states, tribal courts, and courts of foreign countries.
- However, state of Michigan judgments, orders, subpoenas, and warrants are presumed to be valid (along with other states, tribal courts, and foreign countries that provide reciprocal recognition and enforcement of Pokagon Band Tribal Court judgments, orders, subpoenas, and warrants).

In December 2016, the Board of Directors approved amendments to the Tribal Code, Chapter 70, that implemented Tribal Court jurisdiction over non-natives under the Violence Against Women Act. These amendments recognized Sault Tribe's inherent power to exercise "special domestic violence criminal jurisdiction" (SDVCJ) over certain defendants, regardless of their Indian or non-Indian status, who commit acts of domestic violence or dating violence or violate certain protection orders on tribal lands.
