Support

Explanation:

The Animal Law Section supports HB 4849, which would prohibit research facilities from performing painful or distressing experiments on dogs and cats. Research shows that the public objects to the use of taxpayer dollars for this type of experimentation. The bill is particularly focused on invasive, fatal experiments conducted on dogs at Wayne State University. That research has failed to produce any human-relevant results in the decades that it has been performed. There are human-relevant research options available, such as human tissue and stem cell studies, clinical trials, and population studies, making painful and invasive experiments on dogs and cats unnecessary and wasteful.
