Re: Unsung Hero Award

Upon graduating from Law School in 1996, I could think of nothing else than learning the practice of law from my father. Growing up in Muskegon, I had always been asked, "Oh, are you Vern's son?" The question was usually followed by, "Your father helped me out" or, "your father is a great man," or "your father is one tough attorney."

Often times I would hear a story as to how he won an un-winnable case, or helped someone who could not help them self or afford an attorney, or took on a cause that was a long shot for the principle of the matter. Attorneys that take cases on principle are too few and far between, but my father built a reputation on it that extends throughout West Michigan to this date.

Back in his hey-day, he was referred to as a self-proclaimed "maverick." He took on cases and causes that were highly political and usually publicized. Most attorneys would stay away from those types of cases in fear of burning too many bridges. Not my father, he thrived in taking on tough cases and causes. Very active in politics, he also became known as the liberal democrat attorney in Muskegon and West Michigan. Wherever there was a political battle to fight, my father was there, either on the front lines, or behind the scenes.

Back in the late 60's and throughout the 70's, he was known as "the" civil rights attorney in Western Michigan. To this date, people still bring up his reputation as a trend setter and pioneer in civil rights. Fighting for the underprivileged, the downtrodden, victims of prejudice, and the underdog became his niche. He wore it well into the 80's and 90's. Although he has slowed down a little bit now and is mainly practicing his bread and butter area of Social Security Law, he still has time to take on a few causes these days.

Today, at the age of 73, he still comes to the office 7 days a week. People always ask me how he is and when he is going to retire. I usually tell them the standard answer: "Never, he wouldn't know what to do with himself if he wasn't in the office or court everyday consulting and helping people." Some attorneys have referred to him as "an attorney's attorney," thousands of former clients would refer to him as their hero. I, of course, simply refer to him as dad. No matter what, he will always be my unsung hero.

Dear Lois, Dave, and the rest of the family:

I was unable to attend last Saturday's service because of some family commitments.

We have lost a giant in our community.

When I came to town in 1985, Muskegon had several firms of some size and renown. Vern's firm was one of the best. The influence that he, and his colleagues, had both on the community, and the legal community, was profound. I have come to appreciate how much we miss the mentoring and the standards he and others provided. And while he was a skilled advocate, he understood that one could zealously argue cases without creating enemies or losing friends. We miss that.

It was only later that I learned that many of those individuals, including Vern, also had reputations statewide and beyond. I think Vern's affable and approachable personality (which is good) led folks to underestimate his influence in those circles.

Of course, with Vern, there was quite often little distinction between the community and the "legal" community. He was THE best person at using the law for perhaps its highest purposes—to help provide justice to those less fortunate, and to move our society to better places.

I cannot close without mentioning the politics which were so much of his life. Yes, we were on different sides of the aisle, but he knew, as many today do not, how to use those principles in a productive way. He attended more Republican events than most Republicans, and knew all of our political leaders. I grew to seek and follow his advice in my own career. He was always astute and on the mark.

We will miss him. We already do.

Sincerely,

Re: Nomination of Vernon Kortering for Unsung Hero Award

I offer this letter in support of the selection of the late Vernon Kortering as a recipient of the State Bar's Unsung Hero Award. Vern's legal career epitomized everything that makes ours such a noble profession.

Upon completion of law school in 1983, my dream was to practice poverty law as a Legal Aid lawyer. When I returned to Muskegon to fulfill that dream, I soon discovered that there was already a lawyer here who had been selflessly representing the poor and the marginalized for years, often at no charge. That man was not a Legal Aid attorney. Vern lived the spirit of pro bono.

I frequently thought of the values and practice of Atticus Finch in "To Kill A Mockingbird" and Vern Kortering as mirror images of each other.

My life and career were richly blessed by my colleague, Vern Kortering. He became a friend, a mentor, a role model.

It is my hope that the good folks of the Representative Assembly will posthumously bestow this high honor on Vern Kortering. The many people who knew and loved him, both in and outside our Bar, will applaud and thank you for selecting a most worthy recipient.

When Vern died in January of this year, I was asked by his family to deliver a eulogy at his memorial service. On that day, I looked out over a church packed with people who represented different ages, different races, and different economic status. We had all been touched by the life and example of the man we remembered—a man who was our hero.

Choosing Vern for this prestigious award would both honor and reward this Unsung Hero's legacy of selfless service.

The words and length of this letter are far too feeble to adequately describe Vern's life of service. Just the same, I thank the members of the Representative Assembly for your gracious consideration of the nomination of Vernon Kortering as the 2015 Unsung Hero of the State Bar of Michigan.

Respectfully submitted,

P.S. It would be remiss of me to close without mention of one of the most unforgettable days of my life. In September of 2009, I stood before the Representative Assembly, humbled and touched beyond words as your 2009 Michael Franck Award recipient. This letter allows me the opportunity to THANK again those of you who were members of the Assembly six years ago for treating Dan Bonner to a day he will never forget.
